recognise him as a Subject of the State. His foreign national character will not disappear by his being a State Subject. For, after all, it is to be noted that even State Subjects when they go out are treated as British protected persons. In the case of Mr Krumbigal, I doubt very much if such protection will be extended. Further it would raise a very controversial issue, if when Emergency measures are taken in the Event of War, we will be in a position to afford such protection to Mr Krumbigal as would enable him to avoid the drastic measures that may then be necessary. In these circumstances, I doubt if it would be wise of us to take any step in the matter. Whatever the personal merits of the case may be, a foreigner is a foreigner and cannot change his spots by long residence. unless he is enabled to do so under a law. Our people are treated with no such consideration when in foreign countries for Study etc.

12. JUL 1939

My dear Sir Mirza,

I request the favour of kind perusal of the enclosed letter from Mr Trevelyan. As it is not possible to obtain a British naturalisation as a resident of an Indian state, I asked him whether the accumilated time I have resided in British India (during deputation leave, etc., would qualify, which he also answered in the negative.

He however states that if I am accepted as a subject of the Mysore State by domicile I would be regarded as a British protected person, As I have resided in Mysore State over 30 years, have identified myself completely with Mysore interest, and mean to continue to reside in Mysore, I should feel deeply obliged if the Government of H. H. the Maharaja would accept me as a subject of the Mysore State.

This would, I am confident protect me from any disabilities arising out of a war, such as internment, confiscation of property, repatritation etc, etc.

Assuring you of my deepest loyalty to His Highness, yourself, and the State, I thank you for your valuable recommendation,

and remain

Yours most sincerely.

Dear Mr. Krumbiegel

I am sorry that the paper containing the particulars of your naturalisation was mislaid and hence there has been delay in replying.

It appears that your periods of residence in British India will not qualify you to be naturalised as a British subject either under the British Nationality and Status of Aliens Act, or under the Indian Naturalisation Act: though if you are accepted as a subject of the Mysore State by domicile, you will be regarded as a British Protected person and will be entitled to receive a British passport as such. If you require any further information and like to call on me in office, I will be glad to give it to you.
